Partner

Maggie Turnbull, 68, is a senior partner and a leadership consultant with a wealth of international business experience working from CEO and boardroom level to the factory floor. Having worked with the multi-national corporation Procter & Gamble and now as one of the founders of The McLane Group, she is responsible for the development and management of the company's business in the USA. Maggie has recently been helping companies in South Africa and Singapore and will be in Brazil on business later this year.

She helps individuals and teams to get in touch with the impact they want to make and find ways to build fast, breakthrough relationships with their colleagues. In this respect her ability to work with business imperatives and ruthless compassion is a core dimension of her consultancy work. Maggie's high impact style is founded on the extraordinary relationships that she builds with her clients and with the deep rapport and trust she creates in her workshops. Indeed it is her passion for what people can achieve and she is an ambassador for equality within and outside the workforce. As Maggie herself says:

"I care about people attaining their true potential, I care passionately about fairness, there is no such thing as equality and the recognition of women in this world inside or outside business regardless of age."

As a consultant Maggie uses a balance of understanding, caring and rigour to hold clients to their personal and business vision. She is able to get in touch with people's potential and enable them to realise it in a way which they can embrace and then use for their own, and others' benefit. In this respect she has an ability to keep clients firmly focused on their 'bottom line' whilst, at the same time, creating enough space for them to capture their people's hearts and minds.

Maggie lives in Cheshire and is married with 3 children and 4 grandchildren. In her spare time she is a keen golfer and sportswoman, she used to play competitive squash on a regular basis.
